Captain Bayfield's SNOWY Treasure Hunt!

TOWN OF Parry Sound

In 1820 a young sailor by the name of Henry Wolsey Bayfield was enlisted by the British Empire to conduct unnegotiated surveys within the territories of the Anishinaabe nations.

He travelled along the shores of what are known today as Lakes Huron and Superior, mapping and renaming thousands of islands and geographic features including the “Parry Sound” where the current town of Parry Sound is located.

Recent legends of Bayfield’s lost treasure have resurfaced along with a mysterious map that we have reprinted for you to follow on the other side of this brochure.

The museum needs your help to decode the clues left behind and uncover the treasure!
Please see the instructions below to learn how to begin...

Instructions

1. Start your treasure hunt journey at the Bobby Orr Hall of Fame. Once you are there go inside and let the owners know you are searching for Bayfield’s lost treasure!
2. From that point, you should follow the clues you are given/ directed to around town. Each new location will lead you to the next, make sure to collect the special code word at each site.
3. Lastly, travel safely. Travel according to outdoor conditions, make sure to take your time and reflect on local history as you go!
